Discover how key leaders in pathology have begun to transfer innovation into clinical laboratory practice.

Many areas within pathology are seeing dramatic growth in the practice of pathology, under the influence of new technological developments and in response to external financial and health care pressures. By attending Futurescape IV, you will be able to learn how the latest technologies will define possible treatment for patients. You will also have occasion to meet and network with pioneering innovators in the areas of molecular pathology, digital pathology, data and information management and clinical operations.

Four conference travel awards up to $1,000 each are available to pathology residents to attend the Futurescape conference.

About the Award
Funding for this conference award program is made possible through the generosity of the Dito Family and donors to the William R. Dito, MD, Fund for Informatics. Conference travel awards are intended to defray costs of travel, and hotel expenses. The conference registration fee is waived. We expect the recipient’s own institution will support the resident’s attendance by authorizing permission to attend. If conference expenses exceed the travel award amount, a resident can use his/her own travel funds or seek department funds to cover the rest of the expenses.
